Contents

1 Introduction ................................................................................................................................................. 1

Part I A Model of Work-In-Household and Labor Supply with Privately Consumed Household Goods

2 A Theory of Allocation of Time in Markets for Labor and Marriage: Macromodel .......................................................................................................................... 21

3 A Theory of Allocation of Time in Markets for Labor and Marriage: Multiple Markets for Work-in-Household .............................................................. 33

Part II Labor Supply and Other Time Uses

4 How Marriage Markets Affect Allocation and Valuation of Time Implications from a Macro Model...................... 41

5 Compensating Differentials in Marriage Markets and more New Implications for Labor Supply Based on a Marshallian Marriage Market Analysis ................................................................. 57

7 Labor Supply, Household Production, and Common Law Marriage Legislation ............................................................................................................... 89

8 Labor Supply and Marriage Markets: A Simple Graphic Analysis with Household Public Goods .............................................................. 115

9 Household Production and Racial Intermarriage ............................................................................... 123
Part III  Consumption and Savings

10  A Consumption Theory with Competitive Markets for Work-in-Household .............................................................. 167

11  Savings, Marriage, and Work-in-Household .............................................. 191
The Marriage Motive: A Price Theory of Marriage
How Marriage Markets Affect Employment, Consumption, and Savings
Grossbard, S.
2015, X, 209 p. 14 illus., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-1-4614-1622-7