DESCRIPTION: „The investigation of basic mechanisms involved in the pathogenesis of neurological and psychiatric disorders has undoubtedly deepened our knowledge of these types of disorders. The impact of basic neurosciences on the understanding of the pathophysiology of the brain will further increase due to important developments such as the emergence of more specific psychoactive compounds and new technologies. The Journal of Neural Transmission aims to establish an interface between basic sciences and clinical neurology and psychiatry. The journal is published monthly in three sections:

Translational Neuroscience, Neurology and preclinical neurological studies and Psychiatry and preclinical psychiatric studies.

It is the aim of the editorial board to facilitate publication of the newest developments in the field from all disciplines of the neural sciences that relate to a better understanding and treatment of these disorders.
