As polymer research is rapidly growing around the globe, the aim of this journal is to establish itself as a significant information tool not only for the international polymer researchers in academia but also for those working in industry. The scope of the journal covers a wide range of the highly interdisciplinary field of polymer science and technology, including:

- polymer synthesis;
- polymer reactions;
- polymerization kinetics;
- polymer physics;
- morphology;
- structure-property relationships;
- polymer analysis and characterization;
