Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies for Global Change

An International Journal Devoted to Scientific, Engineering, Socio-Economic and Policy Responses to Environmental Change

Editor-in-Chief: R.K. Dixon

- Addresses a wide range of timely environment, economic and energy topics
- A forum to review, analyze and stimulate the development, testing and implementation of mitigation and adaptation strategies at regional, national and global scales
- Contributes to real-time policy analysis and development as national and international policies and agreements are discussed and promulgated
- 94% of authors who answered a survey reported that they would definitely publish or probably publish in the journal again

We are pleased to announce that Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies for Global Change has been accepted in September 2010 by Thomson Reuters (formerly ISI) for inclusion in the Science Citation Index Expanded (also known as SciSearch®), Journal Citation Reports/Science Edition, and Current Contents®/Agriculture, Biology, and Environmental Sciences.

Mitigation and Adaptation Strategies for Global Change addresses a wide range of timely environment, economic and energy topics including global climate change, stratospheric ozone depletion, acid deposition, eutrophication of terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems, species extinction and loss of biological diversity, deforestation and forest degradation, desertification, soil resource degradation, land-use change, sea level rise, destruction of coastal zones, depletion of fresh water and marine fisheries, loss of wetlands and riparian zones and hazardous waste management.

The journal provides a forum to review, analyze and stimulate the development, testing and implementation of mitigation and adaptation strategies at regional, national and global scales. One primary goal of this journal is to contribute to real-time policy analysis and development as national and international policies and agreements are discussed and promulgated.

Impact Factor: 2.216 (2016), Journal Citation Reports®
