Advances in Therapy

Managing editor: A. Brown

Advances in Therapy is an international, peer reviewed, rapid-publication (peer review in 2 weeks, published 3–4 weeks from acceptance) journal dedicated to the publication of high-quality clinical (all phases), observational, real-world, and health outcomes research around the discovery, development, and use of therapeutics and interventions (including devices) across all therapeutic areas. Studies relating to diagnostics and diagnosis, pharmacoeconomics, public health, epidemiology, quality of life, and patient care, management, and education are also encouraged.

Advances in Therapy is of interest to a broad audience of researchers, industry and healthcare professionals, receiving submissions from all over the world, and publishes original research and authoritative reviews focusing on new and existing therapies and interventions, areas of unmet need and general topics of interest to the medical community. Articles published in Advances in Therapy may be accompanied by lay-level summaries, to assist patients (and caregivers) in understanding important medical advances.

Moving forward from traditional publishing, Advances in Therapy offers a range of additional features designed to increase visibility and readership. Each paper is accompanied by a bulleted slide summary, giving a time-efficient overview of the content to a wider readership. Articles also have the option to include various other types of enhanced features including slide sets, videos and animations. All enhanced features are open access and are peer reviewed to the same high standard as the article itself.

Upon acceptance of your article for publication, you will be required to pay an article processing charge of £420/$660 per typeset page. Additionally, Advances in Therapy offers an open access option for all articles submitted to the journal. If you choose open access publication you will be required to pay an additional fee of £2000/$3000 upon acceptance of your article. The journal will consider fee discounts for developing countries and this is decided on a case by case basis.

Peer Review Process

Upon submission, manuscripts are assessed by the editorial team to ensure they fit within the aims and scope of the journal and are also checked for plagiarism. All suitable submissions are then subject to a comprehensive double-blind peer review. Reviewers are selected based on their relevant expertise and publication history in the subject area. The journal has an extensive pool of editorial and advisory board members who have been selected to assist with peer review based on the afore-mentioned criteria.
