Allergo Journal International
Interdisciplinary Journal of Allergy, Clinical Immunology and Environmental Medicine
Herausgeber: T. Jakob; H.F. Merk

- covers all aspects of allergy - from basic science to clinical routine
- official journal of the German Society of Allergy and Clinical Immunology and the Medical Association of the German Allergists
- publishes clinical guidelines and position papers approved by expert panels of the German, Austrian and Swiss Allergy Societies.
- firmly established as leading allergy journal in Germany, Austria and Switzerland

The Allergo Journal International is the official Journal of the German Society for Allergology and Clinical Immunology (DGAKI) and of the professional Association of German Allergologists [Ärzteverband der Deutschen Allergologen (ÄDA)].

The aim of the Allergo Journal International is to provide state of the art information for all medical and scientific disciplines that deal with allergic, immunological and environmental diseases. The Allergo Journal International publishes original articles, reviews, case reports, guidelines and position papers in German and English. The articles cover topics such as allergic, immunological and environmental diseases, the latest developments in diagnosis & therapy and current research work concerning antigens and allergens and aspects related to occupational and environmental medicine. The quality of the contributions is guaranteed by an international board of editors and a peer review process involving at least 2 reviewers.

On the homepage of Allergo Journal International at springer.com you can
- Read selected articles for free
- Sign up for our Table of Contents Alerts
- Get to know the complete Editorial Board
- Find submission information

8 issues/year
Electronic access
▶ springerlink.com
Subscription information
▶ springer.com/librarians