COPD Research and Practice

Editor-in-Chief: M. Cazzola

- A new open access home for your research ensuring high visibility
- Rapid, thorough peer review
- Publishes basic, clinical and translational research and review articles

COPD Research and Practice is a new journal, launching in 2015, which will publish basic and clinical research and review articles relating to the development, progression and treatment of Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) and related disorders.

The translational aspect of the journal allows for new ideas to be exchanged between clinicians and researchers alike and both the open access format and high profile Editorial Board enable the dissemination of research to an international audience ensuring high visibility and a wide reach for all publications.

Giving authors in their area of expertise the opportunity to publish open access

- High visibility thanks to unrestricted online access
- Rigorous peer-review and high-quality author services
- Creative Commons licensed – authors retain copyright
- Citation tracking and inclusion in bibliographic databases
- Easy compliance with open access mandates

Electronic access
- copdpr.biomedcentral.com