Journal of Chinese Studies
Editor-in-Chief: Z. Wang

- Offers a vehicle for worldwide China studies, promoting dialog at home and abroad
- The contributors are experts in China studies at world universities and research institutions
- An official publication of Central China Normal University

This journal provides a vehicle for worldwide China studies, promoting lively dialogue at home and abroad. It publishes articles on politics, economy, social problems, education, philosophy, literature and history, especially contemporary China scholarship.

Giving authors in their area of expertise the opportunity to publish open access
- High visibility thanks to unrestricted online access
- Rigorous peer-review and high-quality author services
- Creative Commons licensed – authors retain copyright
- Citation tracking and inclusion in bibliographic databases
- Easy compliance with open access mandates