The Journal of Health, Population and Nutrition (JHPN) has a rich and distinguished history. Originating in 1983 as the Journal of Diarrhoeal Diseases Research, it was re-launched in 2000 by icddr,b, a world-class public health research organization, in Dhaka, Bangladesh. icddr,b developed JHPN during the period 2000-2015 as an internationally renowned journal, with a special focus on research of relevance to developing countries.

Impact Factor: 1.187 (2016), Journal Citation Reports®

Giving authors in their area of expertise the opportunity to publish open access

- High visibility thanks to unrestricted online access
- Rigorous peer-review and high-quality author services
- Creative Commons licensed – authors retain copyright
- Citation tracking and inclusion in bibliographic databases
- Easy compliance with open access mandates