Aims and Scope

The International Review of Intellectual Property and Competition Law is a peer-reviewed publication. Having been published since 1970 by the Max Planck Institute for Innovation and Competition, IIC provides access to information and genuine academic research findings in the field of IP and competition law. The scope of the journal includes the law on patents, copyright, designs, trade marks, unfair competition and restraints of competition. At the same time, IIC adopts a multidisciplinary approach and thus also publishes economic analyses and material on aspects of competition and innovation policy related to IP and competition law. The journal monitors developments at the international and national level, including those in "non-mainstream" jurisdictions. IIC is further known to value perspectives on legal developments highlighting facets not usually covered by (most) non-European journals on the topic. The journal is directed at the specialist, who has an interest in scholarly debate. IIC publishes articles, opinions, reports, international and national case law, case notes and book reviews.
