Contents

Part I  Scientific Principles

1. Introduction .............................................. 3
   Peter Hogg

2. Basic Discussion on Electromagnetic Radiation: Gamma Radiation in Relation to SPECT Imaging .................... 19
   Richard S. Lawson

3. Basic Discussion on Electromagnetic Radiation: X-Rays in Relation to SPECT/CT Systems .......................... 35
   Peter Hiles

4. Gamma Camera SPECT ................................. 47
   Richard S. Lawson

5. Computed Tomography: Physical Principles, Instrumentation, and Quality Control ............................... 77
   Euclid Seeram and Joanne Sil

Part II  Selection and Design

6. Selecting an Appropriate SPECT/CT Scanner ............. 111
   Julian MacDonald, Marc Griffiths, and David Wyn Jones

7. Design of a Suitable Facility to House a SPECT/CT Scanner ............................. 147
   David Wyn Jones, Julian MacDonald, and Peter Hiles

Part III  Clinical SPECT/CT

8. Clinical Utility (Applications) of SPECT/CT .................. 165
   Tom Kane, Randeep Kulshrestha, Alp Notghi, and Mark Elias
Part IV  Radiation Protection

9  Practical Radiation Dose and Practical Radiation Protection
    Considerations .................................................. 229
    Joanne Sil and Euclid Seeram

10 Optimal Utilization of Imaging Parameters in CT Scanning:
    Uses of CT in Radionuclide Imaging – Different Manufacturer
    Approaches .......................................................... 239
    Lynn Bateman and Joanne Sil

Part V  Imaging Principles

11 Cross-Sectional Anatomy in Multi-Planar Imaging ............... 271
    John M. Delieu and Joanne Sil

12 Radiological Contrast Media and Injector Systems ............. 287
    Jonathan Priestley and Joanne Sil

13 Practical Considerations for Performing Clinical SPECT/CT:
    Nuclear Cardiology; Respiratory; Oncology; Neuroendocrine;
    Infection; Trauma/Musculoskeletal; Neurological; Miscellaneous
    Techniques ......................................................... 299
    David Wyn Jones, Marc Griffiths, and Diane Kenwrick
