Contents

Part I  Twenty-First Century Archaeological Practice and Training: The New Realities

1  Archaeologists at the Table: From Community to Global
   John H. Jameson
   .................................................................

2  Discovering the Archaeologists of Europe
   Kenneth Aitchison
   .................................................................

3  Australian Archaeology in Profile: A Survey of Working Archaeologists
   Sean Ulm, Stephen Nichols, and Cameo Dalley
   ........................................................................

4  No Going Back: Remembering When British Archaeology Changed Forever
   Kenneth Aitchison
   ........................................................................

5  From Feast to Famine? The Archaeological Profession in Ireland in the New Millennium
   Patrizia La Piscopia, E. Eoin Sullivan, and Conor McDermott
   ........................................................................

6  Competition and the Development of Authorised Heritage Discourses in a Re-emergent Scottish Nation
   Malcolm A. Cooper
   ........................................................................

7  Confirming Relevance: How American and Canadian Archaeologists Are Training Youth and Adults in Archaeology, Heritage Studies, and Community Partnerships
   Sherene Baugher
   .................................................................

8  Over Qualified and Under Skilled? Training and Professional Development in the UK
   Kate Geary
   ........................................................................

xxi
Part II  Archaeology and Development: The Economic Forces and Consequences of Compliance-Driven Archaeology

    Michael R. Polk

10 Archaeology in the “Real World”: The Training–Practice Disconnect in North American Consulting Archaeology .................. 145
    John P. McCarthy and Aaron Brummitt

11 The Emergence of the Commercial Sector in Irish Archaeology 1987–2007: Lessons to Be Learnt on Research Opportunities Lost ................................................................. 153
    Margaret Gowen

12 Knowledge Creation and Publication in Development-Led Archaeology in Ireland: Some Problems and Possible Solutions ..... 167
    Linzi Simpson

13 Knowledge, Value and the Celtic Tiger ........................................ 175
    Brendon Wilkins

14 The Malta Convention and Contemporary Polish Archaeology ...... 193
    Zbigniew Kobyliński

15 Process and Realisation of Archaeological Research ................... 201
    František Žák Matyasowszky

16 The Management of Archaeology on National Road Projects in the Republic of Ireland .................................................. 221
    James Eogan

17 Archaeology and Development in a Maritime Context, Highlighting Drogheda and the Boyne Estuary as a Case Study ...... 237
    Niall Brady and Edward Pollard

Index ................................................................................................................. 271
Training and Practice for Modern Day Archaeologists
Jameson, J.H.; Eogan, J. (Eds.)
2013, XXIV, 280 p., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-1-4614-5528-8