

Contents

1 Introduction: Reframing Humans and Information Systems.....	1
Hannakaisa Isomäki and Samuli Pekkola

Part I Human Systems Analysis

2 On the Emergence of Techno-religious Spaces: Implications for Design and End Users.....	17
Heba El-Sayed, Anita Greenhill, and Chris Westrup
3 Towards Lifeworld-Oriented Information Systems Development	31
Andrew Basden
4 Understanding the Business Client – Systems Developer Relationship: A Power Perspective.....	55
Bruce Rowlands
5 A Semiotic Analysis of Interactions Between End Users and Information Systems	75
Sheng-Cheng Huang and Randolph G. Bias
6 Information Systems Development as an Intellectual Process: Designers’ Perceptions of Users.....	93
Hannakaisa Isomäki

Part II Methodology

7 Participatory Design in Information Systems Development.....	115
Keld Bødker, Finn Kensing, and Jesper Simonsen
8 Reflecting, Tinkering, and Tailoring: Implications for Theories of Information System Design.....	135
Dirk Hovorka and Matt Germonprez

9	Evolutionary Application Development: Tools to Make Tools and Boundary Crossing	151
	Anders I. Mørch
10	Design Science Research for User-Centeredness	173
	Juhani Iivari and Netta Iivari
11	“20 Years a-Growing”: Revisiting From Human Factors to Human Actors	181
	Liam J. Bannon
Part III Practice
12	Three Levels of Failure: Analysing a Workflow Management System	191
	Tom Gross and Samuli Pekkola
13	When and How Do We Become a “User”?	211
	Katarina Lindblad-Gidlund
14	Use of Mobile IS: New Requirements for the IS Development Process	227
	Bo Andersson and Stefan Henningsson
15	Reframing Online Shopping Through Innovative and Organic User-Oriented Design	243
	Anita Greenhill and Gordon Fletcher
16	Stakeholder Involvement and Team Working in Systems Development Practice	263
	Hilary Berger
17	Epilogue	283
	Samuli Pekkola and Hannakaisa Isomäki
	Index	287

<http://www.springer.com/978-1-84996-346-6>

Reframing Humans in Information Systems Development

Isomäki, H.; Pekkola, S. (Eds.)

2011, X, 290 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-84996-346-6