

Contents

1 Introduction	1
1.1 The Question of Nature	1
1.2 Between Facts and Ideas	3
1.3 Nature After the End of Nature	5
1.4 Dealing with Complexity	8
1.5 Digital Matters	12
1.6 Overview of Chapters	13
References	15
2 What Is Nature?	17
2.1 The Intricacies of Nature	17
2.2 Towards a Semantics of Nature	20
2.3 Nature Before Darwin	21
2.4 Nature After Darwin	25
2.5 Other Views of Nature?	29
References	31
3 Humanity and Nature	33
3.1 The Socionatural Paradox	33
3.2 From Pristine Nature to Human Environment	35
3.3 Understanding the Human Exception	36
3.4 A Tale of Two Dualisms	39
3.5 The Moralization of Nature	43
3.6 Why Should Nature Be Protected?	45
3.7 Protecting Nature in the Anthropocene	47
References	51
4 The Socionatural Entanglement	55
4.1 Hybrids, Actants, Agencies	55
4.2 Disassembling the Assemblage	58
4.3 Rethinking the Social Construction of Nature	61

4.4 A Plurality of Natures? 63

4.5 The End of Nature and Its Discontents 66

References 69

5 The Coming of the Anthropocene 73

5.1 What is the Anthropocene? 73

5.2 The Anthropocene Foundations (i): Earth-System
Science and Ecology 77

5.3 The Anthropocene Foundations (ii): Geology and Archaeology 78

5.4 The Anthropocene Foundations (iii): Biology and History 80

5.5 A New Nature? 83

5.6 Moralizing the Anthropocene 85

5.7 The Counteranthropocene 88

References 90

6 Political Natures 95

6.1 Nature and Politics 95

6.2 The Macropolitics of Nature 99

6.3 The Micropolitics of Nature 104

6.4 Politicizing Habitation 108

6.5 Democracy and the Anthropocene 112

References 115

7 The Future of Nature 119

7.1 An Experiment to Be Continued? 119

7.2 Environmentalism in the Anthropocene 121

7.3 Society and Nature in the Anthropocene: A Summary 124

References 127

Index 129

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-319-15951-5>

Environment and Society
Socionatural Relations in the Anthropocene
Arias-Maldonado, M.
2015, X, 131 p., Softcover
ISBN: 978-3-319-15951-5