

Contents

1	Comic Character as Homo Ludens	1
1.1	Playfulness in American Humor	1
1.2	Comedian Comedy	3
1.3	Reading Film Comedy as a Game	6
1.3.1	Huizinga's Theory of Play	7
1.3.2	The Characteristic of Games and Playful Behavior According to Roger Caillois	9
1.3.3	The Need for the New Categories of Pragma and Óneiros	11
	References.	15
2	Agon in Groundhog Day and Feds	17
2.1	Theoretical Introduction	17
2.2	The Personal Triumph in Groundhog Day	19
2.2.1	Phil, the Homo Ludens	20
2.2.2	Analyzing Groundhog Day as a Game	26
2.2.3	Triumphing Over the Man in Feds	29
	References.	34
3	Alea in Spies Like Us, Bowfinger, Taking Care of Business, and Brewster's Millions	35
3.1	The Adventures of Spies Like Us	37
3.2	Bowfinger's Gambit	45
3.3	Taking Care of (Somebody Else's) Business	48
3.4	Brewster's Millions : Anything for Love... of Money.	51
	References.	53

4	Mimicry in Three Amigos!, Austin Powers, and HouseSitter	55
4.1	Mimicking the Three Amigos!	57
4.2	The Private, Oneiric Worlds of Austin Powers and Dr. Evil	69
4.2.1	Repetition in Service of the Game	70
4.3	Invading Someone Else's Dreams in HouseSitter	74
	References.	78
5	Ilinx in Rush Hour and Showtime	81
5.1	Rush Hour —Ilinx in Service of Fighting Crime.	83
5.2	Chan's Ilinx	84
5.3	Carter's Ilinx	86
5.4	Showtime and the Hypnotic Appeal of the Camera.	90
	References.	95
6	Conclusion	97

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-319-47966-8>

Homo Ludens as a Comic Character in Selected
American Films

Skweres, A.

2017, XVIII, 97 p. 20 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-47966-8