1 Introduction........................................................................................................ 1

2 Application of Countermeasures to Justify the Establishment of Safe Zones as a Response to Large-Scale Refugee Outflows .... 5
   2.1 Analysis of the Requirements for a Countermeasures Defense to Establish of Safe Zones ......................... 6
      2.1.1 A Response to a Previous Internationally Wrongful Act ............................................. 6
      2.1.2 The Responsible State Must Be Called upon to Return to a Lawful Situation Before Countermeasures Are Adopted .................................................. 8
      2.1.3 Countermeasures Must Be Directed Only Against the Wrongdoer State to Induce Compliance with Its International Obligations ............................................. 9
      2.1.4 Duration ........................................................................................................ 10
      2.1.5 Reversibility ................................................................................................ 11
      2.1.6 Proportionality ........................................................................................................... 12
   2.2 Collective Countermeasures ................................................................................. 16
   2.3 Forcible Countermeasures ...................................................................................... 17
      2.3.1 Character of the Use of Force ........................................................................ 18
      2.3.2 The Ban on the Use of Force and Forcible Countermeasures ............................................. 19
      2.3.3 Forcible Measures Against Large-Scale Refugee Outflows ........................................... 22
3 Application of the Concept of Necessity to Justify the Establishment of Safe Zones to Prevent Large-Scale Refugee Outflows

3.1 Analysis of the Requirements for a Necessity Defense to Establish of Safe Zones

3.1.1 An ‘Essential Interest’ of the State Must Be at Stake

3.1.2 Presence of a ‘Grave and Imminent Peril’

3.1.3 The State Must Have no Other Means of Safeguarding Its Interest

3.1.4 Balancing Conflicting Interests

3.1.5 State’s Contribution to the Occurrence of the Situation of Necessity

3.2 Application of the Necessity Doctrine to Justify Forcible Action Abroad

4 Application of the Humanitarian Intervention Doctrine to Justify the Establishment of Safe Zones to Alleviate Human Suffering

4.1 Responsibility to Protect or Humanitarian Intervention?

4.2 Breaking the Sovereignty Shield

4.3 The Link Between Human Suffering, Refugee Outflows and International Security

4.4 Historical Instances of Humanitarian Intervention

4.5 Legality of Humanitarian Intervention and the Establishment of Safe Zones

4.6 Disinterest

5 Conclusion

References

List of Cases
Safe Zone
A Response to Large-Scale Refugee Outflows and Human Suffering
Çetinkaya, L.B.
2017, VIII, 71 p. 9 illus. in color., Softcover
ISBN: 978-3-319-51996-8