
Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Corruption	2
1.2	Close Cousins: Kleptocracy, Corruption, and Rent-Seeking	4
1.3	Modeling the Government	8
1.3.1	Focus on the National Interest	8
1.3.2	Efficiency of Resource Use	8
1.3.3	Limit Economic Disparity	8
1.3.4	Value Future Generations	8
1.4	Tax Evasion	11
1.5	Taxation and Government Debt	14
1.5.1	Endogenous Tax Rates	15
1.5.2	Endogenous Government Debt	15
1.6	Economic Growth	18
1.7	Modeling the Culture of Corruption	19
1.8	The Big Three: Growth Slowdown, Wage Inequality, and Fiscal Crisis	20
1.9	Policy Reforms	22
1.10	Outline	24
1.11	Exercises	25
	References	27
2	Two-Period Model of Government Investment	31
2.1	The Life-Cycle Model of Consumption and Saving	32
2.1.1	Borrowing Constraints	34
2.2	Introducing the Government	35
2.2.1	Taxes and Government Investment	36
2.2.2	Public Debt and Government Investment	37
2.3	The Small-Open Economy Model	38
2.3.1	Private and Public Credit	39
2.3.2	Only Public Credit	41
2.4	Human Capital, Inequality, and Public Debt	43
2.5	Public Capital and Productivity	46

2.6	Pure and Impure Public Capital	47
2.7	The Allocation of Public Capital	49
2.8	Fiscal Federalism	52
2.8.1	Tax Financing of Regional Investment	52
2.8.2	Bond Financing of Regional Investment	54
2.9	A Note on Migration	56
2.10	A Dynamic Generational Model	57
2.10.1	The Growth Model	58
2.10.2	The Investment Share	60
2.11	Principles for Tax Collection	62
2.12	Conclusion	62
2.12.1	Basic Principles	62
2.12.2	Regional Issues and Inequality	63
2.12.3	Identifying the Influence of Politics	63
2.13	Exercises	64
	References	70
3	Politics and Corruption in the Two-Period Model	73
3.1	Fiscal Policy with Policy Makers	75
3.2	The Politics of Investment Allocation	77
3.3	Fiscal Federalism with Politics	81
3.3.1	Extending the Fiscal Federalism Model	81
3.3.2	No Political Influence	83
3.3.3	Equilibrium with Political Influence	84
3.3.4	A Note on Decentralization	86
3.4	Foreign Funding and Regional Inequality	87
3.4.1	Foreign Funding for the Poor Region	87
3.4.2	Focusing on Corruption	89
3.5	Political Polarization	89
3.5.1	Polarization and Deficit Bias	89
3.5.2	Public Investment	91
3.5.3	Fiscal Rules	93
3.6	Interest Groups and Rent Seeking	94
3.6.1	Cooperative Solution	96
3.6.2	Non-cooperative Solution	96
3.6.3	Foreign Aid	99
3.7	Determinants of Corruption	100
3.7.1	Behavior of a Public Official	101
3.7.2	Equilibrium Corruption	102
3.7.3	Further Issues to Be Resolved	102
3.8	Conclusion	103
3.9	Exercises	104
	Appendix	107
	References	108

4	Overlapping-Generations Model of Economic Growth	111
4.1	Firms, Production, and the Demand for Capital	112
4.2	Household Saving and the Supply of Capital	116
4.2.1	The Supply of Labor and Capital	116
4.2.2	Household Saving	117
4.2.3	Supply of Capital per Worker	118
4.3	Competitive Equilibrium in a Growing Economy	119
4.3.1	Steady State Growth—Technical Progress	122
4.4	Quantitative Theory	123
4.4.1	Calibration	125
4.4.2	Historical Simulation	127
4.5	Introducing the Government	129
4.5.1	The Fiscal Gap	131
4.5.2	Government Capital and Private Production	131
4.5.3	Households with Taxes and Transfers	132
4.5.4	Capital Market Equilibrium and Fiscal Policy	133
4.6	Fiscal Policy	133
4.6.1	Government Purchases—Consumption	134
4.6.2	Government Purchases—Consumption and Investment	135
4.6.3	Intergenerational Policy	136
4.6.4	Debt Policy #1	137
4.6.5	Debt Policy #2	138
4.6.6	Government Pensions—Fully Funded	138
4.6.7	Government Pensions—Pay-As-You-Go (PAYG)	139
4.7	Capital Accumulation in an Open Economy	139
4.7.1	Open Capital Markets and Growth in Developing Countries	140
4.8	The Fiscal Crisis	142
4.8.1	The Fundamentals	144
4.8.2	The Politics	145
4.9	Generational Accounting	146
4.10	Exercises	148
	Appendix	155
	The Government Intertemporal Budget Constraint	155
	Tax Rates	156
	References	157
5	Politics, Corruption, and Economic Growth	159
5.1	Government: Benevolent Dictator or Kleptocrat?	162
5.1.1	Firms	162
5.1.2	Households	162
5.1.3	Capital Market Equilibrium	163
5.1.4	Government	163
5.1.5	Steady State Equilibria and Income Gaps	166

5.1.6	Opening the Economy	168
5.1.7	Foreign Aid	169
5.2	Wagner's Law and Interest Groups	170
5.2.1	Households	171
5.2.2	Firms	172
5.2.3	Open Economy	172
5.2.4	Government Policy	173
5.3	Tax Evasion	176
5.4	A Benchmark Economy Without Corruption-Evasion	177
5.4.1	Private Households	177
5.4.2	Public Officials	177
5.4.3	Firms	179
5.4.4	Capital Market Equilibrium and Fiscal Policy	179
5.4.5	Fiscal Policy	179
5.4.6	Calibrating the Benchmark Economy	180
5.5	An Economy with Corruption and Evasion	181
5.5.1	Preferences	182
5.5.2	Private Households	182
5.5.3	Public Officials	183
5.5.4	Corruption, Evasion, and Investment for a Given Tax Rate	185
5.5.5	Economy's Transition Equations	186
5.5.6	Corruption, Evasion, and the Tax Rate	187
5.5.7	Calibration	188
5.5.8	Corruption, Evasion, and Output	189
5.6	Conclusion	190
5.7	Exercises	191
	References	193
6	Corruption and Public Debt	195
6.1	Theories of Government Debt	196
6.2	Corruption and Altruism in the Two-Period Model	198
6.2.1	Fiscal Policy	200
6.3	An Overlapping-Generations Model Without Corruption and Evasion	203
6.3.1	The Baseline Model	203
6.3.2	Calibration	208
6.4	An Economy with Corruption and Evasion	208
6.4.1	Calibration and Simulation	211
6.4.2	Empirical Implications	213
6.5	Empirical Evidence	216
6.5.1	Public Debt Cycles	217
6.5.2	Corruption and Debt	217
6.5.3	Public Debt, Corruption, and Growth	219

6.6	Conclusion	219
6.7	Exercises	220
	References	222
7	The Political Economy of Fiscal Reforms	227
7.1	Economic Fundamentals	228
7.1.1	Aging and Rising Health Care Costs	228
7.1.2	Slowing Long-Run Economic Growth	231
7.1.3	Rising Wage Inequality	237
7.1.4	Policies Addressing the Economic Fundamentals	239
7.2	Politics	248
7.2.1	Corruption, Tax Evasion, and Public Debt	249
7.2.2	Interest Groups and Public Debt	250
7.2.3	Transparency	251
7.2.4	Budget Process and Rules	254
7.2.5	Polarization	255
7.2.6	Summary	256
7.3	Reforming Foreign Aid	256
7.3.1	Needed: Accountants Without Borders	256
7.3.2	Alternative Pre-conditions for Aid	257
7.3.3	Multi-lateral Aid	258
7.3.4	A Knowledge Bank of Development Projects	258
7.3.5	Deal with Corruption First	259
7.4	Exercises	259
	References	261
8	Conclusion	267
8.1	Summary	267
8.1.1	Why Does Sustained Modern Economic Growth Fail to Take-Off?	267
8.1.2	Why Does Foreign Aid to Governments of Developing Countries Fail to Generate Growth?	268
8.1.3	Why Does Long-Run Growth Eventually Slow?	268
8.1.4	Why Is Income Inequality on the Rise?	269
8.1.5	Why Have Fiscal Crises Become Commonplace, Threatening the Prosperity of Most Developed Countries?	270
8.2	Is Government Failure Inevitable?	271
8.3	Historical Lessons?	272
8.3.1	Is the United States, Rome?	273
8.3.2	Other Empires	276
8.4	Suggestions for Further Reading and Study	281
	References	282

Technical Appendix	285
A.1 Two Useful Functions	285
A.2 Optimization	288
A.3 Nonnegativity Constraints and Corner Solutions	292
A.4 Total Differentials and Linear Approximations	295
A.5 L'Hospital's Rule	296
A.6 Expected Utility	297
A.7 Game Theory and Nash Equilibrium	298
A.8 Quadratic Equations	299
A.9 Infinite Series	300
Index	301

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-319-68665-3>

The Macroeconomics of Corruption
Governance and Growth

Ivanya, M.; Mourmouras, A.; Rangazas, P.

2018, XII, 304 p. 13 illus., 9 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-68665-3