This work has been carried out during my employment as a research assistant at the University of Duisburg-Essen, Chair of Logistics and Operations Research. It was funded by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG) under grant no. KI 1272/2-1.

Airlines realize various benefits through forming strategic alliances. They earn revenues through selling tickets for the flights, where several airlines are involved. This work proposes mechanisms for the fair allocation of the revenue among the alliance partners. Solutions based on cooperative game theory are developed, which are then used to develop and evaluate other heuristic methods.

The completion of this study would not have been possible without the contribution and support of many people. First of all, I would like to thank my supervisor Prof. Dr. Alf Kimms for introducing me the idea of my research and providing me the opportunity to work on his chair. I am greatly indebted to his guidance, valuable discussions and encouragement throughout my doctoral study. I also thank to Prof. Dr. Peter Chamoni for reviewing my work.

It was a great pleasure for me to work with my colleagues Sarah Bretschneider, Michaela Graf, Waldemar Grauberger, Igor Kozeletskyi, Klaus-Christian Maassen, Christina van Megen, Christoph Reiners and Julia Schaaff. I would like to thank them for providing me valuable support in my research and teaching activities, for our inspiring discussions as well as for the non-work related time we shared, which made these four years an enjoyable and rewarding experience for me. I am also indebted to my colleague Judith Christiane Schneider form the university for having made her support available in a number of ways.

I would also like to thank Çağdaş Özgür, Christian Kästner and Mohammad Alberaqdar for providing me technical support, Stefanie Kockerols and Vera Riesenweber for their help in literature research as well as Nicole Jaschinski for her constant support in the organizational issues.

I am grateful to my friend Derya Uysal for always listening to me and cheering me on when I needed. Special thanks go to Emine Güner and my other friends in Dortmund for the wonderful organizations and very enjoyable times, which kept me motivated through the entire process. Moreover, I would like to thank everybody... supporting me despite the long-distance between us and express my apology not to mention personally one by one.

Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to my family for their continuous encouragement. Their unwavering support and love gave me the strength to get through the difficult situations.
