Contents

List of Tables and Figures ........................................................................................................ 13

Part A – Into the Topic
1 Introduction: Focus and Approach
   1.1 Overview and Research Statement ................................................................. 17
   1.2 Research Questions and Analytical Structure ............................................. 22
   1.3 Locating the Present Research ..................................................................... 27
      1.3.1 Political Representation and Recruitment ........................................... 27
      1.3.2 The Evolution of a Catchall Concept: The Notion of 'Migration Background' in Formal Documents ............................................. 29
      1.3.3 Stigma Revisited: Using the Concept of Stigma in Analysis of Status-Rich Actors .......................................................... 30
      1.3.4 Multifaceted Structure of the Concept of "Migration Background": From "Deficit" to "Resource" ........................................... 31
   1.4 Method, Data, and Research Design ............................................................ 32
   1.5 Overview of Chapters .................................................................................... 34

Part B - Reflection on Relevant Concepts: Towards a Way to Examine Politicians with Migration Backgrounds
2 Approaching Political Recruitment and Representation
   Introduction ................................................................................................................. 39
   2.1 Political Recruitment and Political Elite Studies .......................................... 43
   2.2 The Rocky Road to Power: Supply-Demand Side Theory for Recruitment ................................................................. 46
      2.2.1 ‘It’s me you are looking for’: Supply-Side Factors ............................... 46
      2.2.2 ‘I am looking for THE ONE…’ Demand-Side Explanations of Gatekeepers in the Political System ............................... 51
3 Setting the Stage: The Multifaceted Structure of the Concept ‘Migration Background’ and the Road from Deficit to Difference and Diversity

Introduction ................................................................................................ 63
3.1 Tracing the Term “Migration Background” ............................................. 68
3.2 The Deficit-to-Difference Triangle: The Three Phases of Examining Migration Background as a Marker in Scholarly Work ....................................................................................................... 72
   3.2.1 Cluster One ................................................................................... 73
   3.2.2. Cluster Two .................................................................................. 74
   3.2.3 Cluster Three ................................................................................ 78
3.3 Kaleidoscope of the “Stigma” Concept ................................................ 80
   3.3.1 Stigma Reloaded .......................................................................... 81
3.4 ‘It is not all about deficits’: Turning Deficit into an Asset ............... 92
   Concluding Remarks ............................................................................ 99

Part C - Research Design
4 Methodical Process and Empirical Considerations

Introduction .............................................................................................. 105
4.1 Grounded Theory as a Point of Departure ....................................... 106
   4.1.1 Theoretical Sampling and Purposeful (Criterion Based) Sampling ................................................................. 108
4.2 Interview Design: Problem-Centred Interview Design (PCI) in Elite and Specialised Interviews ................................................................. 110
4.3 Justification of PCI for this Study ....................................................... 112
4.4 Definition of Respondent Group and Access ..................................... 116
4.5 Field Access ......................................................................................... 117
4.6 Tape-Recording and Generation of Transcripts ............................... 118
5 The Researcher vs. the Researched: Demystification of the Researcher in the Interview Encounter

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Introduction</th>
<th>121</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5.1 The See-Saw of Power between Interviewee and Interviewer</td>
<td>124</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2 Turning the Mirror onto the Researcher: On the Location of the Researcher as In- and Outsider</td>
<td>127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3 Insider, Outsider, or Both: Changes in the Course of Study</td>
<td>129</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4 Lost in Translation: Switching Between Languages in the Field and Analysis</td>
<td>131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Concluding Remarks</td>
<td>132</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

6 The Kitchen of Data Collection & Data Analysis

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Introduction</th>
<th>135</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>6.1 First Encounters with the Elected: Informal Contacts and Pilot Interview</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.2 Data Compilation</td>
<td>137</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.3 ‘Listening with a Big Ear’: Interview Cohorts</td>
<td>139</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.4 Design of Questions</td>
<td>144</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5 Open Coding</td>
<td>148</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.6 Memoing</td>
<td>151</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.7 Comparing, Contrasting and Abstraction of Data</td>
<td>152</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8 And Then ‘Aha!’ Did I Say: Genesis of the Core Category</td>
<td>155</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8.1 The Strategy of Neutralisation</td>
<td>158</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8.2 The Strategy of Redefinition</td>
<td>159</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8.3 The Strategy of Compensation</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8.4 The Strategy of Singularisation</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.8.5 The Strategy of Political Diversification</td>
<td>162</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.9 The Core Category</td>
<td>162</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Part D - Findings of the Empirical Data: A Level-by-Level Analysis of the Five Strategies of Management of the Marker “Migration Background” in Politics

7 Level of Formation: At the Doors of a Political Career

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 169

7.1 The Strategy of Neutralisation: Common Patterns in Political Career Representation

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 170

7.1.1 Sameness in Professionalism: “A Political Career as any other…” .......................................................... 173
7.1.2 Benchmarking the ‘Earned’ and ‘Gifted’ Mandates .......................... 178
7.1.3 Socialisation in the System: ‘Being as at Home in Germany as any other in the Parliament’ ......................... 184

Concluding Remarks ........................................................................................................ 190

8 Level of Recalibration: Via Redefinition, Recognition and Negotiation

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 195

8.1 The Strategy of Redefinition: Roles and Functions

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 196

8.1.1 Being the Role Model ......................................................................................... 201
8.1.2 Brokers or Bridge-Builders between Cultures .............................................. 206
8.1.3 The Double-Edged Sword: Enrichment vs. “Being Instrumentalised” .................. 211

8.2 Strategy of Compensation: The Burden of Proof

Introduction .......................................................................................................................... 219

8.2.1 Glorifying the ‘Extra Mile’ through Diligence and Hard Work .......................................................... 220
8.2.2 Command of Language(s) as the Ticket Out ................................................... 224

Concluding Remarks ........................................................................................................ 226
9 The Level of Selective Delineation

Introduction .................................................................................................................. 231

9.1 The Strategy of Singularisation

Introduction .................................................................................................................. 232
   9.1.1 Stimulant Migrant for Success: ‘Education is the Key to a Society’ .................. 234
   9.1.2 Alibi Mandates in Parties and Own Deserved Positions .................................. 237
   9.1.3 Longing for a Future Normalcy: Defining Normal and Exotic .......................... 241

9.2 The Strategy of Political Diversification: Decision-Making in Parliamentary Functions

Introduction .................................................................................................................. 243
   9.2.1 Political Action beyond the Shadow of Countrymen ........................................... 245
   9.2.2 Quo Vadis? Avowal or Disavowal of Interests in Migration- and Integration-Related Themes ........................................................................................................... 250
   9.2.3 Bound by Experience: Why Politicians with Migratory Backgrounds are Better Spokespersons for Migration/Integration .................................................. 253
   9.2.4 ‘Possum, sed nolo.’: Once a Spokesperson on Migration Policy, Always a Spokesperson on Migration Policy ................................................................. 259

Part E - Final Remarks

10 Concluding Chapter

Introduction .................................................................................................................. 267
   10.1 Discussion on Key Concepts: Representation, Migration Background .......................................................... 270
      10.1.1 Political Representation ...................................................................................... 270
      10.1.2 "Migration-Background" as a Marker ............................................................... 277
   10.2 Data Collection and Data Analysis ........................................................................ 282
   10.3 Overview of Research Findings ............................................................................ 284
   10.4 Research Achievements ....................................................................................... 290
   10.5. Limitations and Demarcations ............................................................................ 292
   10.6 Recommendations for Future Research ............................................................ 293

Bibliography ................................................................................................................ 295
I Long for Normality
A Study on German Parliamentarians with Migration Backgrounds
Nergiz, D.D.
2014, XIV, 300 p. 5 illus., Softcover
ISBN: 978-3-658-01871-9