

Contents

1	Introduction: The Emergence of Networked Public Communication . . .	1
1.1	Why Study Networked Public Communication	1
1.1.1	Media and Communication Studies Are Facing Challenges and Opportunities	1
1.1.2	Crossing the Take-Off Point	2
1.1.3	Networked Mass Communication	5
1.1.4	Media System Revolution	7
1.1.5	The Insufficiency of the Concept “Internet Communication” . . .	8
1.1.6	Research Topics	10
1.2	Key Concepts	11
1.2.1	Various Conceptions About the Crowd	11
1.2.2	Networked User: The “Subjectivity” and “Networked” of Crowd	13
1.2.3	Networked Public	14
1.2.4	Networked Public Communication	19
1.3	Theoretical Orientation and Methods	27
1.3.1	Subject in Structure	27
1.3.2	Paradigm of “Social History” and “Media Decentralization”	31
1.3.3	Empirical Data and Interpretation	33
1.3.4	Methodology	34
1.4	Brief Review of Related Research	35
1.4.1	Network Society and Social Network	36
1.4.2	The Internet and Web 2.0	37
1.4.3	Audience Research	38
1.5	Framework of This Book	39
	References	41
2	Context of Networked Public Communication	45
2.1	Social Shift and Mediascape	45
2.1.1	Mass Society	45

2.1.2	Network Society	47
2.1.3	Mediascape	49
2.2	China's ICT in the Twenty-First Century	54
2.2.1	What Is ICT	54
2.2.2	The Development History of ICT in China	55
2.2.3	Comparison Between the Development of ICT in China and the Globe.	63
2.2.4	Reasons for Chinese Government to Develop ICT	70
2.3	Networked Public and Non-networked Public in Contemporary China	76
2.3.1	Composition of the Networked Public	76
2.3.2	The Significance of Networked Public Communication to Non-networked Users.	78
	References	82
3	Networked Public: The Subject of Networked Public Communication	85
3.1	Networked: Integration of Information Network and the Social Network	86
3.2	Information Filtering Mechanism: Search Engine and Collaborative Filtering	91
3.2.1	Filtering Mechanism 1: Search Engine	92
3.2.2	Filtering Mechanism 2: Collaborative Filtering	93
3.3	Empowerment: The Production Capability and Behavior of Networked Public.	96
3.3.1	Audience and Production	97
3.3.2	Producing Content	98
3.3.3	Producing Channels	100
3.3.4	Producing Communities	100
3.4	Constraints: Identity Tending to Be Real and Privacy to Be Less	101
3.4.1	Omniprison	102
3.4.2	Identity Tending to Be Real and Fixed.	104
3.4.3	New Views on Privacy	109
3.5	Collective Intelligence or Group Polarization	112
3.5.1	Collective Intelligence	112
3.5.2	Group Polarization	113
3.5.3	Better or Worse	115
3.5.4	Against Determinism: The Choice of Networked Public.	116
	References	119
4	Social Media: Tools and Space for Networked Public Communication	123
4.1	Features of Social Media	123
4.1.1	Owners not apt to produce content.	124
4.1.2	Everyone Could Participate	125

- 4.1.3 Forming Social Network 126
- 4.1.4 User-Generated Content 127
- 4.1.5 Transforming Content to Feeds and Flows. 128
- 4.1.6 Networking among Various Social Media. 131
- 4.2 Types of Social Media 132
 - 4.2.1 Self-publishing and Self-broadcasting 133
 - 4.2.2 Online Public Discussion Forum 134
 - 4.2.3 Twitter and Weibo: Micro-Content Broadcasting Flow 136
 - 4.2.4 Peer-to-Peer Communication and Communication in Groups 140
 - 4.2.5 Content Sharing and Folksonomy 142
 - 4.2.6 Social Networking Sites 143
 - 4.2.7 Collaborative Editing and Question-Answer 146
 - 4.2.8 Virtual World 148
- 4.3 Contrast on the Strength Between Mass Media
and Social Media and Their Development Trends 150
 - 4.3.1 The Boom of Social Media and Transformation of Mass Media 150
 - 4.3.2 Recession of the US Newspaper Industry 152
 - 4.3.3 Mass Media and Social Media in China. 160
 - 4.3.4 How about the Future. 163
- References 166

5 The Flow of Information: Features and Models of Networked Public Communication 169

- 5.1 Networked Public Communication Under Regulation. 170
 - 5.1.1 Four Regulation Forces 170
 - 5.1.2 Regulations on Networked Public in China 171
- 5.2 Communication of System in Blogosphere 177
 - 5.2.1 System 177
 - 5.2.2 Disappearance of “System” 179
 - 5.2.3 Diffusion of “System” in the Blogosphere. 181
 - 5.2.4 Analysis of the Flow of Information
Pertaining to “System” 183
- 5.3 Analysis on the Information Flow in Five Networked
Public Communication Cases. 196
 - 5.3.1 2009 World Internet Project Report 197
 - 5.3.2 Coolest Nail House. 198
 - 5.3.3 Fake Photos of South China Tiger 201
 - 5.3.4 Nude Photos Scandal 203
 - 5.3.5 Guangyuan Tangerine Maggot. 205
- 5.4 Characteristics of Information Flow in Networked
Public Communication. 206
- 5.5 Model of Networked Public Communication 209
- References 212

6 Resistance to Regulation: Group Behavior and Culture in Networked Public Communication 213

6.1 SMTH BBS as a Social Media 214

6.2 Campus BBS Regulation Issue in 2005 216

6.3 Process of the SMTH Regulation 219

6.4 Reactions by the SMTH Users 221

6.4.1 Online Reactions Within SMTH 222

6.4.2 Online Reactions Outside SMTH 227

6.4.3 Offline Reactions 229

6.5 Analysis of the Behavior of Networked Users 231

6.5.1 Interpersonal Interactions and Information Flow 231

6.5.2 Role and Power of Networked Users 232

6.5.3 Resistance Identity 233

6.5.4 Quotation from the Authoritative Text 236

6.6 Results of “the Real-Name Regulation Issue” 236

6.6.1 The Failure of Regulation 236

6.6.2 The Failure of Resistance 240

6.7 Particularity and Universality of the “Real-Name Regulation Issue” 242

6.8 Cultural Resistance of Networked Public 243

6.8.1 Case 1: “Very Erotic, Very Violent” 244

6.8.2 Case 2: Internet Mythical Beasts 247

6.8.3 Case 3: Dress Up Famous Renaissance Nudes 252

6.8.4 Case 4: War of Internet Addiction 256

6.9 From Cultural Resistance to Resistance Culture 263

References 266

7 Power Game: Networked Public Communication and Social Transition 269

7.1 Rethinking of Networked Public Communication 269

7.1.1 Tool and Field 269

7.1.2 Power Game 270

7.1.3 Analysis of Power Game 272

7.2 Power Game Between the Networked Public and Mass Media 275

7.3 Power Game Between the Networked Public and Political Forces 280

7.4 Power Game Between the Networked Public and Marketing Forces 285

7.5 Information Manipulation in Networked Public Communication 287

7.6 Networked Public Communication and Civil Society 292

References 297

8 Conclusion 299

Postscript 303

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-662-47778-6>

Networked Public

Social Media and Social Change in Contemporary China

He, W.

2017, X, 308 p. 35 illus., 29 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-662-47778-6