Contents

Part I  The Context

1  The Rise of English as the Language of Science .......................... 3
   References ........................................................................ 4

2  Measuring the Impact of Articles, Journals and Nations .......... 5
   References ........................................................................ 9

3  English Competence, Funds for Research and Publishing Success ... 11
   References ...................................................................... 13

4  Collaborations, Teams and Networks ................................. 15
   References ...................................................................... 18

Part II  The Text

5  The Scientific Research Article and the Creation of Science ........ 21
   References ...................................................................... 24

6  Varieties of Science Texts ................................................. 25
   References ...................................................................... 26

7  Structure of the Research Article in the Creation of Knowledge ... 27
   7.1  Making Claims ........................................................ 28
   7.2  Passives and People ................................................... 33
   7.3  Noun Structures and Nominalizations .............................. 34
   7.4  Summary ............................................................... 36
   References ...................................................................... 37
8 Writing the Five Principal Sections: Abstract, Introduction, Methods, Results and Discussion

8.1 Structures for the Research Paper
  8.1.1 The IMRD Hourglass
  8.1.2 The Research Paper as Conversation

8.2 The Introduction

8.3 Materials and Methods Sections

8.4 Results Section

8.5 Discussion Section

8.6 Abstract

8.7 A Second Look at Structures for the Research Paper

References

9 Variations in Different Languages and Cultures

9.1 Overall Style of Writing

9.2 Introduction Sections and Moves

9.3 Discussion Section

9.4 Abstract Section

9.5 Context

9.6 Summary and Conclusions

References

Part III The People

10 Graduate Students Becoming Scientists

References

11 Novice Scientists and Expert Scientists

References

12 English-Speaking Scientists and Multilingual Scientists

References

13 Gatekeepers, Guardians and Allies

References

14 Afterword: Negotiating Research Article Writing and Publication