

Contents

1	The Ownership of the Firm	1
1.1	A Story of Robin Hood	1
1.2	Power, Entrepreneur, and Objectives of the Firm	2
1.3	Choice, Risk Attitude, and Types of Contract	7
	References	8
2	Maximizing Profits and Maximizing Resource Providers' Wealth	11
2.1	The Coase Theorem and the Modigliani-Miller Propositions	11
2.2	A Simple Example of the Modigliani-Miller Second Proposition	14
	References	15
3	A Reconsideration of the Modigliani-Miller Propositions	17
3.1	A Tale of Two Cows—The Modigliani-Miller First Proposition	17
3.2	Some Fallacious Arguments for the Modigliani-Miller Second Proposition	19
	References	22
4	Derivatives and the Theory of the Firm	23
4.1	Model-Free Option Prices	23
4.2	The Firm's Resources and Derivatives	31
4.2.1	Each Resource Is Both a European Call Option and a European Put Option	32
4.2.2	Each Resource Is a Stock Plus a Forward Contract	35
	References	36

- 5 Arbitrage and Valuation of Different Contracts 39
 - 5.1 The Arbitrage Theorem 39
 - 5.2 Properties of the Binomial Option Pricing Model 45
 - 5.3 Valuing Different Contracts 53
 - Appendix A: Incomplete Market 60
 - Appendix B: Incomplete Market and Replication of Securities 61
 - Appendix C: More Uncertain Project and the Firm’s
Value 64
 - References. 64

- 6 Misinterpretations of Residual Claim in Finance and Corporate Law 67
 - 6.1 De Jure Versus De Facto 67
 - 6.2 Agency Costs and Residual Claim 71
 - 6.3 Moral Hazard and Residual Claim 72
 - References. 74

- Index 75

<http://www.springer.com/978-981-287-352-1>

The Ownership of the Firm, Corporate Finance, and Derivatives

Some Critical Thinking

Chang, K.-P.

2015, XII, 76 p. 11 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-981-287-352-1