

Call for Papers

The International Journal of Economic Policy Studies, IJEPS, aims at developing economic policy studies. The journal offers comprehensive coverage of both applied economics and multidisciplinary policy studies. IJEPS seeks applied economic studies that are rich in policy implications, based not only on reliable economic models but also on robust econometric analyses. It also encourages multidisciplinary studies that focus on policy-making process and policy implementation and deployment. In addition to economic science, the methodology includes methods in law, political science, sociology, psychology, behavioral science, and other social sciences. Studies of economic thought and history as a foundation of policy making are also within the scope of the journal.

Areas of interest include:

- Public finance
- Money and finance
- Industrial organization
- Public choice
- Labor and demography
- Health, education, and welfare
- Transportation, tourism, and regional economies
- Energy and environment
- International trade and investment
- Economic development and growth
- Law and economics
- Institutions and comparative systems

Articles that examine other areas related to economic policy are also welcome.

Criteria

To be considered for publication in this journal, an article must meet the following criteria:

- The article is technically sound in methodology and analysis.
- The article is an academic contribution with novel findings or perspectives and high-quality analysis.
- The article is presented in an intelligible fashion and is accessible to interdisciplinary audiences.
- The data, methodology, and analysis used to obtain the reported results are described in sufficient detail so that the results can be replicated on the basis of the information presented in the article (including how to gain access to third-party data).

Length

Each article should be about 6,000–8,000 words.

Turnaround time

We aim for a turnaround time of 6 months for the first decision. Articles are reviewed by 2 anonymous referees, and the final judgment is made by the editor in chief and co-editors.

Contributors

We welcome submissions not only from established academic faculty and equivalent policy makers or businesspersons but also young researchers, including graduate students and post-graduates.

Target audience

The main target audience of this journal is researchers in economic policy studies.
