

A note for conference organizers

(1) The topic of the conference has to match the profile of the journal exactly. Only those papers will be accepted which match the profile of the journal.

(2) All manuscripts have to be prepared according the authors instructions. The instructions can be modified according the special needs of the organizers. The manuscripts have to be original ones, and they should never have been submitted to JRNC, or anywhere else earlier.

(3) The papers will not be automatically accepted, they have to meet the same high quality standards as those submitted to journal as individual research or review articles. That is why the special issue, or the part of the journal issue publishing the conference papers will be called Selected Papers of the Conference.

(4) The authors are encouraged not just to cite the latest literature of their topic (which is natural), but also refer to each others' papers presented at the same conference and submitted to the same special issue. During editing, the proper citations will be taken care of by the editors.

(5) One of the conference organizers will receive a guest editor's status. He will be responsible for the uploading of the manuscripts in time, organizing the review, and accepting the final set of papers to be published. We highly encourage the organizers to manage the manuscript handling using the editorial manager software of the journal. The guest editor is responsible that all the papers were presented at the conference, and the proper reviewing of the manuscripts.

(6) If the reviewer system of the organizers is comparable to the editorial manager, then they can use their own system. In this case, the author's will be requested to submit their manuscript as usual, and the organizers should provide the editors with the information on the review and which paper can be accepted. The organizers should take care that their information agrees with that in the submissions (same corresponding author, same title etc.)

(7) The deadlines should not be much longer then in the case of regular papers. We recommend that the papers are already discussed during the conference in such a way that they can be submitted shortly after their presentations. We also recommend that the reviewers are informed about their duties and the papers they have to review before the conference. We recommend to keep the following deadlines: submission of the papers within a month after the conference, papers accepted 4 (in the case of large international conferences 6) months after the conference. The papers will appear on line within 3 months after acceptance and within 6 months they are published, all together within one year after the end of the conference.

(8) In the case of a significant delay in the acceptance of the papers, JRNC is not going to publish the selected papers at all.

(9) We offer a perpetual access to the selected papers to all authoring participants and the organizers. In special cases, CD-s can also be purchased from the AK. Selling hard copies of proceedings is discontinued.

(10) All conditions will be regulated by a special agreement between the conference organizers and the AK.

(11) The papers of smaller conferences will be published together with other papers in one issue.
