International Journal of Politics, Culture, and Society
Main editor: P. Baert

- Explores issues at the intersection of nations, states, civil societies, and global institutions
- Covers changing patterns in world economic and political institutions
- Examines ethnic groups, social classes, mass culture and communications
- Assesses the impact of social transformation on public and private life

The International Journal of Politics, Culture, and Society welcomes original articles on issues arising at the intersection of nations, states, civil societies, and global institutions and processes. The editors are particularly interested in article manuscripts dealing with changing patterns in world economic and political institutions; analysis of ethnic groups, social classes, religions, personal networks, and special interests; changes in mass culture, propaganda, and technologies of communication and their social effects; and the impact of social transformations on the changing order of public and private life. The journal is interdisciplinary in orientation and international in scope, and is not tethered to particular theoretical or research traditions. The journal presents material of varying length, from research notes to article-length monographs.
