Korea-Australia Rheology Journal
Editors-in-Chief: H.W. Jung; R.P. Jagadeeshan

- Up-to-date reports on new understanding of the deformation and flow of materials
- Focuses on experimental and numerical advances in complex fluids research
- Offers insight on characterization of technologically important materials

The Korea-Australia Rheology Journal offers broad, practical coverage of current research on the deformation and flow of materials. The editors place emphasis on experimental and numerical advances in the area of complex fluids. The journal offers comprehensive insight into characterization and understanding of technologically important materials with a wide range of practical applications.

Impact Factor: 1.354 (2018), Journal Citation Reports®

On the homepage of Korea-Australia Rheology Journal at springer.com you can
- Sign up for our Table of Contents Alerts
- Get to know the complete Editorial Board
- Find submission information