Issues in Science and Religion: Publications of the European Society for the Study of Science and Theology

Series Ed.: M. Fuller

This series comprises biennial volumes produced by the European Society for the Study of Science and Theology. Each volume will contain approximately 12-15 papers, which are edited by an expert panel. Each volume offers a 'state of play' perspective regarding the area of dialogue between science and religion being considered, looking both at the current situation and at likely further developments within that area. They aim to lay the fruits of current research in specific areas before the wider science-and-religion community, and the general public.
