International Journal of Latin American Religions

Editor-in-Chief: F. Usarski

- ▶ A publication committed to the epistemological and methodological standards of the non-theological, multidisciplinary study of religions
- ▶ Contributes to the investigation of religions and religious phenomena in Latin America and among Latin American minorities in different parts of the world
- ▶ Provides an international forum for scholars of different academic fields engaged in the research of Latin American religions
- ▶ Opens space for the publication and critical discussion of original research articles, as well as interviews, conference reports and book reviews

This multidisciplinary journal presents articles, interviews, conference reports and book reviews that broaden understanding of the history and present state of Latin American religions, both in the region and among Latin American minorities living elsewhere.
