Time Use and Transfers in the Americas

Producing, Consuming, and Sharing Time Across Generations and Genders

- Delivers gender and age profiles of time use on market work and domestic unpaid work with both monetary and time measurements
- Makes a comparison between developed and developing nations in the Americas
- Present a cross country comparison, with a common methodology that can contrast developed and developing nations

This book provides a comparison of the measurement in time and monetary units of unpaid domestic work in Colombia, Costa Rica, Uruguay, and the Hispanic ethnicity in the United States. A standardized technique allows the development of comparable estimates across countries per age and gender which reveal specific behavioral patterns over the life cycle. A mixture of economic conditions, social norms, and demographic trends provide insightful explanations for the unequal burden that women and girls carry when dealing with unpaid domestic activities, an economically significant but traditionally neglected activity. As such, the book is of interested to practitioners in all social sciences, particularly sociologists, demographers, economists, and policymakers.
