Social Sciences : Migration

Amelina, A., Horvath, K., Meeus, B. (Eds.), Goethe-University Frankfurt, Frankfurt, Germany

An Anthology of Migration and Social Transformation

European Perspectives

- Links European migration research to the analysis of changing political-economic constellations in Europe.
- It provides current insights into political regulation of migration, individual practices of migration and mobility, and their embeddedness in the discourses over belonging and rights.
- Presents the most current empirical research in relation to general societal transformations.

The contributions of this book examine contemporary dynamics of migration and mobility in the context of the general societal transformations that have taken place in Europe over the past few decades. The book will help readers to better understand the manifold ways in which migration trends in the region are linked to changing political-economic constellations, orders of power and inequality, and political discourses. It begins with an introduction to a number of theoretical approaches that address the nexus between migration and general societal shifts, including processes of supranationalisation, EU enlargement, postsocialist transformations and rescaling. It then provides a comprehensive overview of the political regulation of migration through border control and immigration policies. The contributions that follow detail the dynamic changes of individual migration patterns and their implications for the agency of mobile individuals. The final part challenges the reader to consider how policies and practices of migration are linked to symbolic struggles over belonging and rights, describing a wide range of expressions of such conflicts, from cosmopolitanism to racism and xenophobia. This book is aimed at researchers in various fields of the social sciences and can be used as course reading for undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate courses in the areas of international migration, transnational and European studies.
