Indigenous Peoples, Consent and Benefit Sharing

Lessons from the San-Hoodia Case

- First in-depth study of the world's best known benefit sharing case
- First book on the topic of benefit sharing, which brings the collective knowledge of case experts from Asia, Australia and North America to critique the experience of their African counterparts for mutual learning
- Offers analysis and recommendations for policy makers under significant pressure to resolve the challenges of implementing the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD)

Indigenous Peoples, Consent and Benefit Sharing is the first in-depth account of the Hoodia bioprospecting case and use of San traditional knowledge, placing it in the global context of indigenous peoples' rights, consent and benefit-sharing. It is unique as the first interdisciplinary analysis of consent and benefit sharing in which philosophers apply their minds to questions of justice in the Convention on Biological Diversity (CBD), lawyers interrogate the use of intellectual property rights to protect traditional knowledge, environmental scientists analyse implications for national policies, anthropologists grapple with the commodification of knowledge and, uniquely, case experts from Asia, Australia and North America bring their collective expertise and experiences to bear on the San-Hoodia case.
