Adult Perspectives on Children and Music in Early Childhood

- Explores the role of adults in children's lives in co-constructing musical identities
- Argues the case for music in early childhood and the important role music plays in human activity
- Presents a range of musical experiences designed for children in a care and education setting
- Focuses on the relationship between the adults' own knowledge and teaching and the ideas they bring to their pedagogy and research

This book focuses on the importance and role of adults in promoting music in the early years. Designed to promote the idea of the value of music in the early childhood years, the research discussed in this book explores the experiences of a number of adults working with children from birth to age 8. The initiatives discussed in this work all focus on adults who have encouraged the development of musical identities ranging from music in the home, to musical play in the preschool years, preparing a performance with children, and programs for disadvantaged groups that use music as a communicative tool. Each chapter will start with a description of the particular setting and the protagonists' specific skills and interests and how they came to be working with young children. Themes for the chapters have emerged from the videos and interviews conducted and consist of both reflective and affective experience. The themes include musical background, the adults' own stories, theories of childhood, and pedagogy and philosophy.
