Regulating Global Security

Insights from Conventional and Unconventional Regimes

- Draws from several generations of regime theory with a particular emphasis on key constitutive effects of the productive power
- Divides cases into regime 'clusters': WMDs (nuclear, chemical and biological weapons), humanitarian cluster (SALWs, APLs, CMs) and a 'unconventional' cluster (drugs, cyber weapons)
- Expands the reach beyond weapons while maintaining the focus on the realm of global security

This edited collection presents an innovative approach to global security regimes. Employing both conceptual and empirical studies, the volume examines three empirically-oriented sets of cases: weapons of mass destruction, humanitarian disarmament and unconventional threats. The book combines interrogations of the most prominent prohibition/regulatory regimes while covering WMDs, humanitarian issues and other agendas such as drugs, endangered species and cyber security. It will be of interest to academics and researchers in International Relations and Security Studies.
