Human-Environment Interactions

Current and Future Directions

Series: Human-Environment Interactions

- Foreword by Nobel Prize winner Elinor Ostrom
- Integrates seamlessly research across the social and natural sciences
- Provides a nuanced, interdisciplinary, and state-of-the-art set of approaches to addressing issues as diverse as tropical deforestation, health and disease, the creation of rules for resource management, and how best to meet our current environmental dilemmas

Drawing on research from eleven countries across four continents, the 16 chapters in the volume bring perspectives from various specialties in anthropology and human ecology, institutional analysis, historical and political ecology, geography, archaeology, and land change sciences. The four sections of the volume reflect complementary approaches to HEI: health and adaptation approaches, land change and landscape management approaches, institutional and political-ecology approaches, and historical and archaeological approaches.
